BLOCK PARTY

The party just won't end. This look is far from new, but it's back with such a bang that you don't want to ignore it this year. There are lots of ways to make it work for you. The possibilities for fresh pairing are truly endless.

COATED

For 2013 cold season the coat styles and looks are all about one thing: no rules! I love that. From fur to leather, from bright reds to darks or neutrals, from simple to eccentric, from oversized to slim cut, long to short, clean or patterned - the coat styles are wild and free in 2013 winter. With one thing in mind there's nothing in our way to looking fabulous while staying warm and comfy - Style up Ladies! (that's the only rule). A coat with a perfect pair of boots and a cool bag will make any one of us walk to work as if we're rocking a catwalk. And while you're at it, throw in a thick wool scarf, gloves and maybe a hat or beanie and you are the picture perfect of winter style.

Best thing about the cold weather, if any? It's got to be the clothes and styles we can play around with, and the most important staple for winter is the coat.

Sinfully soft and using fur for Fall.

FUR REAL

The hands down trends for Fall/Winter 2013 was loud and clear... fur is the global fashion trend to follow. The French refer to fur as skins (Peaux). Some fur types in the collections were wooly or furry, others were patented, glossed or even distressed. The choices were endless and quite tantalizing. With layers of fur treatments of all sorts, beautiful fur adaptations were prevalent in both day wear and evening wear.

NIRVANA

Well, it smells like grunge is back in town. This fall season bad girl style rules the fashion world. It's no secret, grunge style is coming back in a big way, a few of us remember the grunge look when it appeared (thank you Seattle and Marc Jacobs) the first time around. Get ready for velvet, corduroy, punky florals, lots of layers, plaids, combat boots and menswear elements. Keep your grunge style fresh with pieces that fit you well and "come as you are!!!"

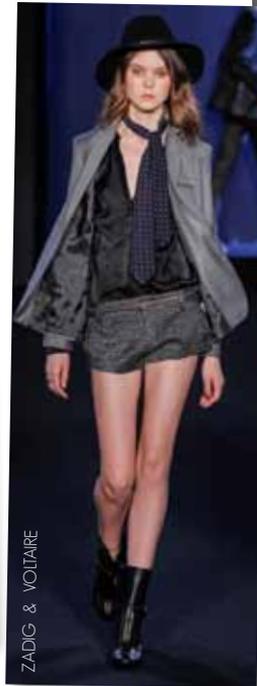

ANARCHIC

Maybe it's the Met exhibition 'PUNK: Chaos to Couture,' which explored punk's influence on high fashion, that have us channeling our rebellious side. Pair studs, spikes, and leather with more refined attire, and we promise you'll pull these edgy pieces off with ease. All you need is the right attitude.

TREND REQUEST

HIS & HERS

Man up! Take a cue from the boys this season, and shop their closets for the latest looks. Think pinstripes, blazers, oxfords, tailored trousers, but styled with a chic, feminine twist. Menswear can be interpreted for formal evening wear, the workplace or a simple day of running errands and strolling around town. This classic but hip look will for sure suit your needs!

OPPOSITES ATTRACT

There is no color combination more classic and timeless than black and white. It always seems elegant and sophisticated no matter what you're wearing and it never goes out of style!

What makes black and white particularly enticing is the idea that it doesn't require a great deal of commitment or cash—everyone has at least one solid black and one solid white piece in their closet, right?

Plus, it's not particularly trendy so wearers won't run into the issue of feeling as though they're buying into a fad with a clear-cut expiration date!

WHAT'S in your SUITCASE?

EVERYONE TRAVELS, SOME TRAVEL FOR WORK AND OTHERS FOR HOLIDAY. BISOUS DECIDED TO DO A LITTLE SURVEY OF OUR OWN ASKING COLLEAGUES AND FANS WHAT THEIR FAVORITE TRAVEL "GO TO'S" ARE, AND MORE IMPORTANTLY, WHAT'S IN THEIR SUITCASES WHEN THEY HAVE TO USE IT. HERE'S OUR RESULTS!

Who are you, what is your occupation?

My name is Liz Lillie and I am a sophomore at Syracuse University studying Public Relations and English Lit.

Where do you often travel to? Do you have a fav site or hotel you like to refer to?

During the school year I enjoy spending down time with mom in Palm Springs, California. You can usually find us lounging at The Parker Palm Springs hotel. For summer break my friends and I always try to hit a new destination together. I'm a huge fan of both Jetsetter and airbnb.com when it comes to finding places to stay. If you're a college student like me, book flights through STA travel or Student Universe. It will change your life.

What can't you travel without?

Carry-on essentials:

- 1.iPad: Because who wants the hassle of lugging around a laptop and magazines at the airport?
- 2.Chic and practical iPad case, $35.00: This quilted silver case from Pixie Market is perfect while you're on the go.
- 3.Fresh Sugar CHERRY tinted lip treatment SPF 15, $22.50: Makes your lips feel divine and adds a pop of color. All I need to make me feel fresh before stepping off the plane.
- 4.Oscar Blandi Pronto Invisible Volumizing Dry Shampoo Spray, $25.00: A must have for freshening up in the bathroom. (Especially if you find yourself having multiple layovers like I do)
- 5.Yummy Lizou Infinity Scarf (any and all colors), $29.00: Feels so yummy and keeps your warm on your flight.
- 6.J. Crew Printed Backup Battery for iPhone, $29.99: A must and the only thing that keeps me playing Bubble Mania for hours on the plane.

WE TRAVEL

Who are you, what is your occupation?

Jenny La Femme (DJ and TV/Film Producer)

Where do you often travel to? Do you have a fav site or hotel you like to refer to?

I have traveled to over 20 countries but lately have been shooting a TV series for PBS all over the United States. I recently stayed at the Iron Horse Hotel in Milwaukee which I highly recommend if you ever find your way there.

What can't you travel without?

1. Apple laptop
2. Aiaia headphones
3. Ileva Sunglasses
4. Little Red Buddha that I got in Cambodia
5. Jawbone Jambox
6. Extra battery charger for my iPhone
7. Emergen-C is a must

Who are you, what is your occupation?

I'm Jordan. A fashion freak, coffee drinker, history lover. I work as a showroom manager at Adam Drawas PR, a fashion PR company. Also, I'm a freelance stylist and writer.

Where is your favorite place to holiday?

My favorite place to go is probably Rome. And I would recommend (if you're taking a long trip), rent an apartment. It's a WAY cheaper option and it's super convenient. I used Tripadvisor.com and had a fantastic experience.

What can't you travel without?

1. Ray-Ban Wayfarer sunglasses (keeping it retro)
2. Gap sandals
3. A gigantic bottle of water

Who are you, what is your occupation?

I'm Natasha, and I'm pretty much a gypsy slash photographer slash dweeb.

Advice for the novice traveler?

Roll your clothing items instead of folding them because it saves more space-- less wrinkles too!

If you obviously don't speak their native language, vendors are going to give you a higher price. Try negotiating the price into half of it, and work your way bits by bits of digits.

What can't you travel without?

- 1. My 13" MacBook Pro
- 2. Canon EOS 7D
- 3. Shock-Proof Transcend external hard-drive
- 4. Decent headphones (Skullcandy, maybe)
- 5. My very essential Messeca platforms-- the most comfortable pair of 5" heels ever invented to run around catching flights in the airport
- 6. Clarins Double Serum, Lancome Artliner waterproof liquid

eyeliner

7. Chanel No 5 perfume

8. Yves Saint Laurent Rouge Pur Couture SPF 15 lipstick in Blood Red (instant sexy in case you need it), some form of comfortable lip balm.

9. A frontgate wireless battery charger for iPad and iPhone, iPhone 5 32GB, because I can't live without my Internet, taking phone-pictures, eBooks bought in GooglePlay.

10. Buy an international travel adaptor for your electronic devices. I would say one international travel adaptor is enough, and then bring a power strip to plug the rest of your devices.

Who are you, what is your occupation?

Audrey Brienne, LA-based celeb stylist.

Do you travel often? Business or pleasure?

At least 8-10 times a year. More often it's becoming business-related (New York Fashion Week). My family and I vacation annually—twice if everyone is able to get together (it gets tricky with a family of 6!).

Where do you often travel to? Do you have a fav site or hotel you like to refer to?

New York, Denver, Vegas and Maui are the places I travel most often. The Ritz-Carlton Kapalua is my favorite hotel—the staff and accommodations are always top-notch.

As a business traveler do you have a "kit" so to speak when going somewhere for work?

Traveling with a celeb is a demanding job—you have to be prepared for any and all 'worst case scenarios' and what-if's. The most essential items I'm sure to have available include; Tide To Go Stain Erasers, nipple covers, safety pins, lots of Top Stick, a lint roller, gum and travel-size sewing kit.

Is there any advice you can give to the novice traveler?

Use Ziploc baggies for all liquids (and pack a few extra for inevitable leaks), utilize mesh baggies for all jewelry- bagging larger items together helps save on room and roll clothing versus folding

What can't you travel without?

- 1.Cetaphil Daily Facial Cleanser
- 2.Bodyography lipstick in Red China
- 3.Ted Baker iPad case
- 4.Kiehl's Sunscreen
- 5.Gleam Body Radiance
- 6La Mer moisturizing lotion and lip balm

Who are you, what is your occupation?

Courtenay Brandt (Stylist, Creative Producer, Brand Consultant)

Where do you often travel to? Do you have a fav site or hotel you like to refer to?

These days I have a little "Travel Triangle" New York, Vancouver and Maui. I always stay with friends but I do have a favorite hotel website, designhotels.com. It is the best contemporary boutique hotel site and I will often actually plan my trip around the hotel I want to stay at.

Is there any advice you can give to the novice traveler?

Go to the place you have always dreamed of and just get lost in exploration. Make sure you have days with no agenda so you can see where the city takes you.

What can't you travel without?

- 1.The Apple essentials—iMac, ipad & iPhone
- 2Dr Bronner's Almond Body Wash
- 3Dove Haircare products - LOVE them, all of them!

4.Vanilla Musk oil I get at Mana Foods in Maui

5.Vichy 40+ Sunscreen

6.And being a redhead a tan does not come naturally so I use the best organic sunless tan Chocolate Sun (chocolatesun.com). I mix it with my Palmers Coconut Lotion for a summer glow. They are a Santa Monica based company and always on the "In Style Best Of" list.

PHOTOGRAPHY KATE SZATMARI | BEAUTY SAYURI MITSUMORI | MODEL XIAN @LA MODELS

Our photographer Kate sZatmari channeled this season's runway for inspiration for one of our Fall Beauty editorials.

Strong, heavy made-up eyes and splashes of color ruled the Autumn/Winter 2013-14 shows. Purples and greens were plucked from Oscar de la Renta and orange and blues from the amazing collection by Michael Kors. The influence of the red "done" lips came from Bottega Venetta and the dewy skin was inspired by the models from Valentino.

BEHIND
THE DESIGNS OF MARIMEKKO

written by fashion contributor JORDAN LAUDADIO

“Marimekko’s designers pour their creative heart and soul into each and every print...to create this vibrant, beautiful work.”

FINNISH TEXTILE COMPANY, MARIMEKKO, WAS FOUNDED ON THE IDEA THAT PEOPLE SHOULD BE COMFORTABLE IN THEIR OWN SKIN, AND ALWAYS LIVE JOYFUL LIVES.

Since 1951, the company has been making their own prints and textiles to celebrate that confidence. Marimekko’s designers pour their creative heart and soul into each and every print, and they are continuously collaborating; textile designers work with ceramic designers who work with fashion designers, to create this vibrant, beautiful work. Marimekko’s timeless prints are simply a lot of fun. Drinking coffee out of one of their mugs, resting in between Marimekko bed sheets, or putting on one of the their dresses means supporting a brand that celebrates you, being you. The global marketing director of Marimekko, Tiina Alahuhta-Kasko took a moment to explain where Marimekko found its roots and how the brand remains relevant and innovative today.

Marimekko designs textiles for both housewares and clothing. How do your designers marry the two to make a cohesive collection?

The heart and soul of Marimekko is in the bold prints, our art of print making, through which we want to bring joy to people's everyday lives. It is from the prints where the Marimekko story also begun 62 years ago. When the founders had realized that people were admiring the colorful textile patterns, but didn't really know how to use them, they decided to organize a fashion show to give ideas what could be made of the fabrics. People wanted to start ordering the collection they saw on the catwalk. Hence, then the founders decided to establish Marimekko - meaning "Mary's dress". And that meant the birth to a brand that is said to be one of the world's first real lifestyle brands.

At Marimekko, we work with dozens of designers. Some of them textile designers, some fashion designers and some ceramic or glassware designers. And what makes the design process at Marimekko very special is the collaboration between these different designers. It is through this creative collaboration, as well as the leadership of Marimekko's Creative Director Minna Kemell-Kutvonen, that at Marimekko we ensure the creation of cohesive lifestyle collections.

How are the traditions that were established when the company began in 1951 still present in Marimekko's designs today?

First of all, Marimekko's mission remains constant from when the company was created: Through our bold patterns and bright colors, we want to bring joy to the everyday lives of people and to inspire them to free their own creativity and authentically be and express themselves. Our art of printmak-

Through our bold patterns and bright colors, we want to bring joy to the everyday lives of people...

ing continues to be the heart and soul of Marimekko design that is then reflected to a gamut of lifestyle products. Furthermore, our collections always interplay between classic Marimekko prints, beloved designs from throughout Marimekko's history, entirely new designs created by our younger generation of designers as well as some prints pulled from our archive today featuring over 3,500 fabric prints. The funny thing though, is that when looking at the collections it is quite impossible to say which design dates back to which time. This is due to the fact that since the beginning, Marimekko celebrated the timelessness of good design. Hence, every design created at Marimekko to ensure it will be as topical 10 to 20 years onwards as it is on the day it is created.

How does Marimekko's Finnish roots influence its prints?

Marimekko is a Finnish fashion and design house, our values are very Finnish from authenticity to fairness, and from common sense to courage. Also visually, Marimekko design reflects the geographical location of Finland between East and West, Russia and Scandinavia. In our design language, from Scandinavia come the simplicity, clarity and graphic impression, while the Slavic influence can be seen in the ornaments, rich shapes and even surprising details.

One phrase on your website explains that Marimekko can help its wearer "dream, play, and live what you wear."

What does that mean to you?

This means that through our unique design expression we want to inspire and encourage people to be themselves and express their own personality boldly, through the way they dress themselves or their homes - and have fun with it!

How does Marimekko want its consumers to feel when wearing the clothing or using the products?

When using Marimekko products we want our customers to feel joy and that the designs they use resonate with their own personality.

I noticed that Marimekko does a lot of artist-designer collaborations. How does the company decide who to team up with?

Part of the excitement of Marimekko design comes from its ability to surprise. Marimekko is never seen at once. Creative collaborations are very natural for us. We believe in enriching dialogue and for example by featuring an industrial designer, a painter or a sculptor as a textile designer brings something totally unique and out of the box to the world of textile print design.

At Marimekko, we give freedom of creativity to our designers and want to foster and develop the designers' own handwriting and interpretation of the world through this art. The one thing though that connects all Marimekko designers is their commitment to the Marimekko design philosophy of wanting to bring joy to people's everyday lives. Hence, when choosing new artists/designers, we look at the strength of the artist's interpretation and its fit to the Marimekko design philosophy.

All of Marimekko's prints are so playful and unique. How do the designers look for new inspiration for each season?

All our designers have their own sources of inspiration, but for most of them nature plays a big role in that. Many of our designers enjoy spending time in nature, observing the small miracles you find there. Nature and the change of seasons we have here up North continue to inspire them and you can find these stories in our designs.

What is your favorite place on earth?

My family's countryside villa in the Finnish archipelago during the summertime, when we can enjoy the midnight sun (sun doesn't really set at all during the main summer months!)

When you travel what can you not live without?

My Marimekko Matkuri (traveler) canvas bag - it is a perfect companion to take with you on travels!

ISLAND, ELEUTHERA

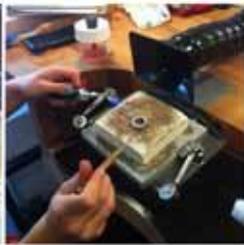

It all began on top of Mauna Kea, Big Island, Hawaii where I received a love proclamation and the most beautiful grey diamond-rose gold ring I have ever seen from my best friend. This was supposed to have been his surprise birthday trip. We love to travel.

Next came the wedding plans, naturally. We knew that there is nothing traditional about us so we settled on a low-key island ceremony at sundown on the night of a full moon with a handful of our closest. The island we chose was Eleuthera, Bahamas. Paradise.

Then we had to figure out a ring for my husband-to-be who has never worn jewelry and hadn't ever thought about what he wanted. Through some tedious research, I found a designer who ticked off all of the boxes: original, custom made and works with materials no one else wants to touch. This is when we flew to Boulder, Colorado to visit the studio and [surprise] meet the lovely man himself, Todd Reed. The end result is a stunning 100% pure palladium with raw diamonds band. (Special thanks to Melissa who not only took care of us, but helped me engrave the ring without Josh's knowledge. Sneaky sneaky!) Needless to say I'm jealous, but also absolutely in love with my galaxy diamond-white gold stunner. Both of my rings were made by the amazing Saara Reidsema in San Francisco.

Don't ask me about the dress. I figured a two piece would be perfect for the beach as the top could be a bathing suit and the skirt could be easily removed so I could dive right into the water. Thus, I bought a beautiful bodysuit and figured I'd make a skirt with the help of my friend Lily and my limited Edition Project Runway sewing machine. After several hours of shredding material, pedal pushing and procrastinating, I realized that the skirt situation wasn't going to work. This was on Thursday. I was leaving to the Bahamas on Friday. The very next Friday.

CLOCKWISE FROM TOP: WEDDING PARTY & BABY RONAN WHO NEVER FROWNS; THE DRESS THAT WASN'T.; JUST MARRIED

Friday morning Josh and I found the perfect little dress. Thanks, TopShop! He wanted to see my legs while I wanted to glisten in the moonlight. Win. Win.

For one week we asked our guests to relax without any formal activities outline. Our only request was for everyone to contribute to the potluck buffet. What a feast it was! (Secret: we invited a smOrgasbord of talented cooks and acquired a kick-ass new friend/mixologist named Kelly.) There were three cakes, well one of them a delicious pie. We refused to cut any, but gladly dug our forks into all of them one by one.

Everyone stayed on beautiful properties waking up to the sound of the ocean in the morning. We stayed at La Bougianvillea which couldn't have been any better.

I could go on and on about all the details of the incredible week and show you an entire album to which all snapping guests contributed, but I won't. Instead I'd love to share the beauty products that came with me to the island and others

Meet James Boehmer,
Director of Global Artistry for NARS Cosmetics as he speaks candidly about the brand, his passion for makeup, and his favorite products.

As the Director of Global Artistry for NARS, please explain what it is that you do for the brand.

As the Director of Global Artistry, my main purpose is to communicate the philosophies and techniques that Francois Nars has had in mind since the brand's inception. Makeup should always have an element of fun-- it should not be taken so seriously and that skin is the heart and soul of every makeup application. I am so fortunate to work for a brand and for an artist that represents my personal feelings about beauty, makeup, and artistry. Francois is an innovator, a mentor, and inspiration. He is one of the reasons I wanted to become a makeup artist in the first place, and it is my pleasure to share this brand with not only our NARS artists, but with the artist community at large. Artistry is always evolving and changing, and as artists it is important to be open to new ways of approaching your craft. With NARS, I get to share my experiences and the gift of working with a genius like Francois with everyone

Just recently, you returned from East Asia. What was your experience working with makeup artists in Korea?

I feel so lucky to travel the world and experience different cultures through my work. Because of this, the world is a smaller, more connected place and that is an amazing discovery! As artists, we speak a very inclusive and cohesive "language" that is truly universal.. my challenges and desires coupled with my role are to ensure this "language" we speak is understood by everyone without any barriers. Makeup artists have a gift as well as a responsibility-- we are allowed access to our clients in an incredibly intimate manner. We share knowledge, tips, expertise, and ourselves. We connect and literally touch people in ways that most people do not. It is great knowing this is how it is across the globe. We all feel the same way and all want the same things.

A few years back, you earned your esthetics license. How has that benefit your career as a makeup artist? Do you find that your clients and those you've worked with are more receptive when you are able to explain what you are doing/using on their skin?

Esthetics is natural progression in my career. It gave me a better understanding of the skin's functions and processes that may affect the texture of the skin, which directly effects how makeup looks and performs. My obsession for skin and skin care extends for as long as I can remember. My mother has the most exquisitely beautiful skin and I understood that it is as much about maintenance as it is genetics. What I am excited and attracted to about Francois' amazing body of work is what he did or did not do with skin. He is truly one of the first makeup artists that stripped the layers away and showed the beauty and texture of skin. He insists that regardless of the skin's finish, it must appear immaculate and flawless. This concept changed the way we use and wear complexion products today. He constantly reiterates that skin is 50 percent of the makeup, and I could not agree more!

There's always that one opportunity that takes one's career to new heights. Describe that moment when you realized your career was taking off. Who and what inspires you?

I view my career as an evolution, something that is in constant motion. It is difficult to pick one specific moment because everything is intertwined. One thing happens because of the other, and so on... I can speak of two. The moment that I "decided" to be a makeup artist was a big one. I loved pop culture, film, fashion, dance, arts, and music. Although I wanted to be a part of those worlds, the problem was I did not know how to get there. I was not the best college student and felt somewhat lost because I was interested in so many things, yet completely unfocused. Long story short, I quit school. When I told my parents why and "what I was going to do with my life," I said I was going to do makeup. I will never know exactly why I said it and why I focused on makeup specifically. But everything changed after that. Suddenly, I became focused and figured out what I needed to do to "become" a makeup artist.

The second "moment" is hard to pin down because it too morphed and changed. When Francois Nars launched the NARS brand in 1994 with 12 lipsticks at Barneys, it changed something. His work was BEYOND influential to me-- I was obsessed! Francois was a part of all of the things I loved, and behind so many of these cultural moments that influenced and inspired me as a teen. The House of Versace. Isabella Rossellini. Steven Meiesel and all of the incredible stories in Italian Vogue. The Supermodels. Liz Tilberis's reign at Harper's Bazaar with Fabien Baron as Creative Director. Madonna's eyebrows. Madonna's Sex book. Shaving Kristen McMenamy's eyebrows. Calvin Klein fragrance ads. "Heroin Chic." Grunge. The return to makeup after grunge. It would be impossible to list what or who inspires me at length. The mid 80's to late 90's shaped my aesthetic, and during the majority of those moments, Francois was involved. To say that it is an honor and a privilege to work with him and represent this brand would be an understatement.

While attending your presentation at The Makeup Show, you inspired quite a few people in your audience. What does that mean to you?

If I can inspire someone, even remotely as much as the people who have inspired me... wow. I am able to do what I truly love doing. I am able to share what I know, what I like, and what I love with like minded people that feel the same way. It means the world to me to think that I could be an influence or inspiration to someone. I am endlessly inspired.

Name your favorite NARS products.

Black Moon eye liner, Mambo eyeliner, Ashes to Ashes single eyeshadow, Sophia single eyeshadow, New York single eyeshadow, Loose Powder, Sheer Glow foundation, Aqua Gel Luminous oil-free moisturizer, Pandora duo eyeshadow, Desire blush, Gina blush, the Yachiyo kabuki brush, Heat Wave lipstick, Fire Down Below lipstick... Should I go on?

when AIR met EARTH

OUR TRANSPLANTED MARRIAGE TAKES ROOT

STORY WRITTEN BY BRETT LORD PROIA | SHARED BY JESSE PROIA

WE SUPPORT

In case you haven't heard, EVERYONE has the right to GET MARRIED—the Supreme Court says it's so.

When we first set out to do a feature on equal rights marriage we thought it would be cool to highlight a couple and their accomplishments and get their take on the Supreme Court ruling. At Bisous we wanted to celebrate the changing times by dedicating some pages to our gay friends, co-workers and family members. After meeting this wonderful young couple, Jesse and Brett the story evolved into something else. We were touched by their plight and their story and we realized there was an entire group of men who were being left out of the wedding publication genre. The groom et groom group if you will. Thus, XYXY: The two groom luxury guide to wedding planning was born. Stay tuned for our debut issue coming soon... but in the meantime, here's some pages to get you going and naturally the feature story that started it all...

WE SUPPORT

The ceremony was fast and furious, but its implications were felt a deeply as one would imagine on their wedding day. Jesse and I had been up late weaving floral wreaths for our groomsmen from the Trader Joe's bouquets he had picked up. The choosing of the attire; I wore gold lame and Jess looked strapping in a beaded vest and bow tie. The buzz of excitement, the tears and emotion, the confusion, and the camaraderie we felt with the lovely and diverse crowd we were sharing our day with at City Hall. The employees who coached us throughout, even though we were 50th couple they would process that day. And like that, we were married as one family unit; a dream team, partners in crime, the yin and yang. Our parents were thrilled though disappointed they couldn't attend. It certainly helped that everyone had gotten along splendidly since the moment we had taken each other home for the old fashion "meet the parents". Just two weeks after the ceremony in Manhattan, we left our niches, nests and crews in Brooklyn, and with the excitement and terror of baby birds, we flew the coup. And thus our Brooklyn love affair was over and we began the journey to the West Coast; destination Los Angeles, CA.

It started as a game or funny joke, but we quickly felt the deep implications. Driving state to state is always an interesting exercise of rights, we found out quickly. Post wedding we began our trek to Cali on our first "husbands" trip up to visit Jesse's family in Vermont. Through the course of the 6 hour drive north, we were married in the state of New York, not recognized through Connecticut, married again in Mass, then recognized as a civil union in good old Vermont. The reality of it is really a bit confusing to say the least; I mean, this is the conflicting message today's kids are getting. The irony lost its humor and we were left questioning, why can't we all just agree on this? With plans to move to Los Angeles two weeks after our wedding, we even wondered, what's the point? It was a common question in the brief time we spent engaged/married in New York. "Why are you get married if you're moving to California where it doesn't make a difference?" And at the time there was only one clear answer; it does make a difference. We are marriage ambassadors, and by setting up shop and engaging in a new community as a married unit, we knew we could change the perception of what an ideal marriage is. Call it "New Fashion Marriage." Anyone who knows us well would be able to call us out on the eye rolling, snickers, and "who would even want to be married(s)," in our adolescence and fiery young adulthoods. But the reality hit when we fell in love and opportunity struck and suddenly the door was open. We had an opportunity to make good with our childhood fears, and for all the repressing of the ideal we had done growing up, we could take a chance and make it ours. So, thats what we have done.

What does it look like then? I'm sure you'd like to hear it's perfect and dreamy (yes, we have our moments) but, ultimately our marriage has taken a lot of work; we expected nothing less. But our reality is one of open communication, honesty and co-commitment; saying what you do, and doing what you say. Co-commitment is one of Jesse's favorite subjects. It is the idea that each partner is fully committed to making the relationship successful while supporting each other's path as fully conceived individuals, and is each partner is responsible for being true to themselves. In doing so, we embrace a new path where we set out to prove we are not much different than any other young couples ready to commit and create a partnership for life. It is with that promise, we are thriving on California soil and after almost two years of being of a different status, we are legally husbands again. It has been an inspiring turn of events in our lives and has illuminated our spirits. We are thrilled to be married in a changing California. Truth is, gay marriage is trending and we are doing it right; life-stylists, inspired, healthy, grateful and a hell of a lot of fun.

SIDE NOTE

Brett and Jesse plan on renewing their vows in the state of California this Spring. We hope to keep in touch and attend this joyous event. They are also doing their own super cool jewelry line see links below:

WE ENHANCE

Malin+Goetz

Malin+Goetz seem to have their shit together and Drew from Chicago agrees. I'm a sucker for a great masculine candle - the Dark Rum Candle certainly hits that spot for me. Bergamot, plum, rum, vanilla, leather and amber-patchouli. I'm done.

Imperial, Ursa Major, Juniper Ridge

A very hip someone I know named Tori suggested Imperial Barber Products, Ursa Major and Juniper Ridge. Now I see why. The packaging is so simple and the reviews so amazing. All three of these super cool brands are American made and care deeply about your skin and hair. I trust each and every one of them based on their mission statements alone, but it helps to know that these are premium quality goodies you'll become addicted to.

The Art of Shaving

The Art of Shaving provides just that with its travel kit which includes Pre-Shave Oil, Shaving Cream, After-Shave Balm, and a Badger Brush. This no-frills chic set is perfect for all trips. My nocturnal valley boy Blake gives it a thumb up. The other excited thumbs up award goes to Lush Dirty Soap for being "shockingly fresh" and making you wake up right.

Yonka for Men Under Eye Gel

If you're worried about your eye circles but don't want anyone to know, your secret's safe with me. Here's a tip: Yonka for Men Under Eye Gel is all you need. Chamomile and peppermint oil soothe and invigorate. You'll feel it working immediately.

Eisenberg Homme

A former San Francisco resident who now tours the globe with Cirque du Soleil, RJ recommended the Eisenberg Homme brand. Though a touch costly, you buy directly from Paris with a guaranteed 3-day DHL delivery. How posh.

Jack Black 3-in-1

No one wants to see red bumps all over your jaw and neck. No one. Take a tip from my super talented boo Marc Cartwright who swears by Jack Black 3-in-1 Clear Complexion Solution: Razor Bump And Acne Treatment. His neck is purdy, yours deserves to be too.

Rene Furterer Modeling Paste

Next door neighbour/friend Scott always has great hair. His secret? Rene Furterer Modeling Paste. Sounds like a commercial, doesn't it? Well, it should be. And he should star in it. This stuff is matte (non-greasy), contains no sulfates and is a humidity/heat protector. One. Stop. Shop.

Every Man Jack Four of a Kind Kit

Sensitive feller? Here's the perfect kit for your woes: Every Man Jack Four of a Kind Kit. Includes a fragrance-free Facial Scrub, Moisturizer, Shave Gel and Facial Wash. There are no harsh chemicals, dyes or sulfates included. Two of my favorite thespians are huge fans of this brand. High fives to Julian in Arizona and Corey in Wisconsin!

John Allan's

If you haven't heard of this selective men's experience you should. John Allan's deals out the "man about town experience" which will make you leave feeling like Ryan Gosling. Even our Editor, Chris Bredesen, came back from the salon rethinking his hair-care/ skin-care regime and looking like a million bucks all the way down to his manicured fingers. Slickwater Pre-Shave Solution preps and conditions to avoid any mishaps without clogging pores. Scrub Exfoliating Skin Cleaner will loosen and help you shed any dry patches you might have. Ocean Daily Nourishing Shampoo refreshes, nourishes the hair and smells manly to boot. The Matte Water-Based Pomade whips your hair into shape without sticky residue, making it pliable enough to run fingers through it.

Tresemme Mega Firm Control Gel

I was a little surprised when I found out my New York fashionista with a penis used hair gel. After the initial shock and some prodding, I found out that he uses one of the few drugstore brands that is alcohol free. Tresemme Mega Firm Control Gel makes Simon's hair glisteny without stripping it of natural oils.

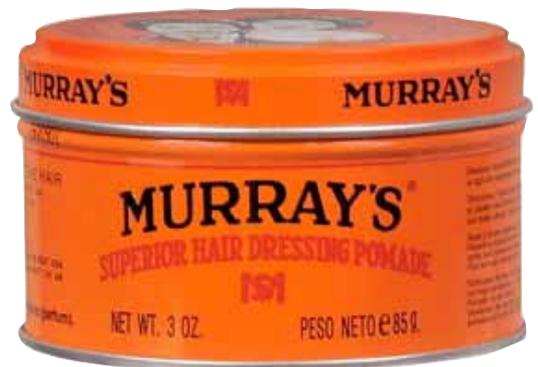

Sharps

Erick in Texas loves Sharps Barber Brigade in Spearmint Jolt and Lemon Fix which is awesome because if you look them up on Amazon.com—you'll love the price!

Murray's

LA comedian Gerry, who I've had the pleasure of working, is too cool to use anything other than Murray's Pomade. A classic staple in any dapper man's grooming kit.

MEN'S TRENDS

MARTIN LEMAITRE
CONTRIBUTING FASHION EDITOR

Four getta-bout-it.

Even though we hate bidding adieu to Summer, we can look forward to transitioning our wardrobe into Fall. Here are some trends that compliment the weather and lifestyle change.

Black

1

What would fall be without black? It's time to bring out those black pieces you feared would induce heat stroke in the summer, back from the bottom of your closet. However, black is always more chic if it is worn in a statement piece such as a jacket or a beautiful pair of black shoes. And if you decide to wear an entire black outfit, refer to trend #2. How sharp would an orange belt look on your black outfit? It's all about that uniqueness you can add to your look.

Orange Tones

Fall is all about the change on the tree's foliage so this trend is appropriate for the occasion. This spectacle of colors is the highlight of the season—why not be part of it? Orange tones were big on runways in Milan, Paris and London this season, whether it was in small accessories or entire outfits. You definitely can't go wrong with some orange pieces this autumn!

VIVENNE WESTWOOD

Bright Blues

You would think the color blue would probably match people's moods during this season, but this year it will just match those blue fall skies. Designers are definitely not being predictable this season, as the majority of the tones are bright and bold, as opposed to dark and sober. And again, this trend goes back to trend #1; blue and black is a perfect and common combination amongst this season's designs.

Patterns

You might consider your summer prints a pattern, and you could probably still pull them off as such.

However, designers have taken a more subtle approach to them by bringing familiar patterns out on their designs.

Stripes, or squares are a fashionable route you can take for that Thanksgiving dinner.

KEATING

BY HAILEE LAUTENBACH

Welcome to the creative and forward fashion world of designer Phoenix Keating. As someone who was not completely familiar with the Australian label which holds the same moniker, I confess I looked at it and immediately got a flavor of what the brand was all about... It pushes the envelope and delivers well constructed, powerful, well thought out items of clothing. Each couture collection is named accordingly and evokes a feeling. Yes his clothes and the images in which he shows them provoke thought. Imagine that. We decided what better way to explain what's behind this driven line than to ask the designer himself.

PHOENIXKEATING.COM

“ A true Phoenix Keating woman is fearless and wears her clothing and accessories like armor. ”

What makes you look at an item and know that it is Phoenix Keating?

Tailoring, silhouette and detail-however it isn't just the look, but the feeling of the clothing that makes it a Phoenix Keating garment. The support imbued by the fit of the garment creates a palpable feeling of power within its wearer.

Describe Phoenix Keating in 5 words.

Powerful, Elegant, Graceful, Sensual and Overt.

What kind of people wear your clothes?

Women who are confident and self assured in their dress sense. A true Phoenix Keating woman is fearless and wears her clothing and accessories like armor.

Do you want to remain an underground cult-following brand, or be sold to the masses?

As time progresses so will the label. The integrity of the brand will always remain, and it will always cater to a very specific woman, however the amount of people who wear it is not up to me. I see growth as a positive thing.

Who would you consider PK's "It Girl" who represents/fits your brand well? (Amber heard, Chloe Sevigny, Kate Moss, etc...)

I love powerful women; Kate Blanchet, Tilda Swinton, and Daphne Guinness come to mind.

Dream celebrity to dress, and why?

Beyonce; Powerful, Elegant, Graceful, Sensual and Overt.

Where do you gather inspiration for new designs?

Usually there is a formula that dictates my design process – A piece of music that inspires me, an object or person that jumps out at me and an era of the past that I love. I mix everything together and usually end up with a hyper modern yet vintage feeling collection with a touch of minimalism and ultra wear-ability. This all of course revolves around a story that I create in my mind, there always needs to be a woman first.

Favorite season to design for?

I don't think I could confine my passion to just one season. I love designing period and I hope that shows through from one season to the next.

Where do you see the Label in 5 years?

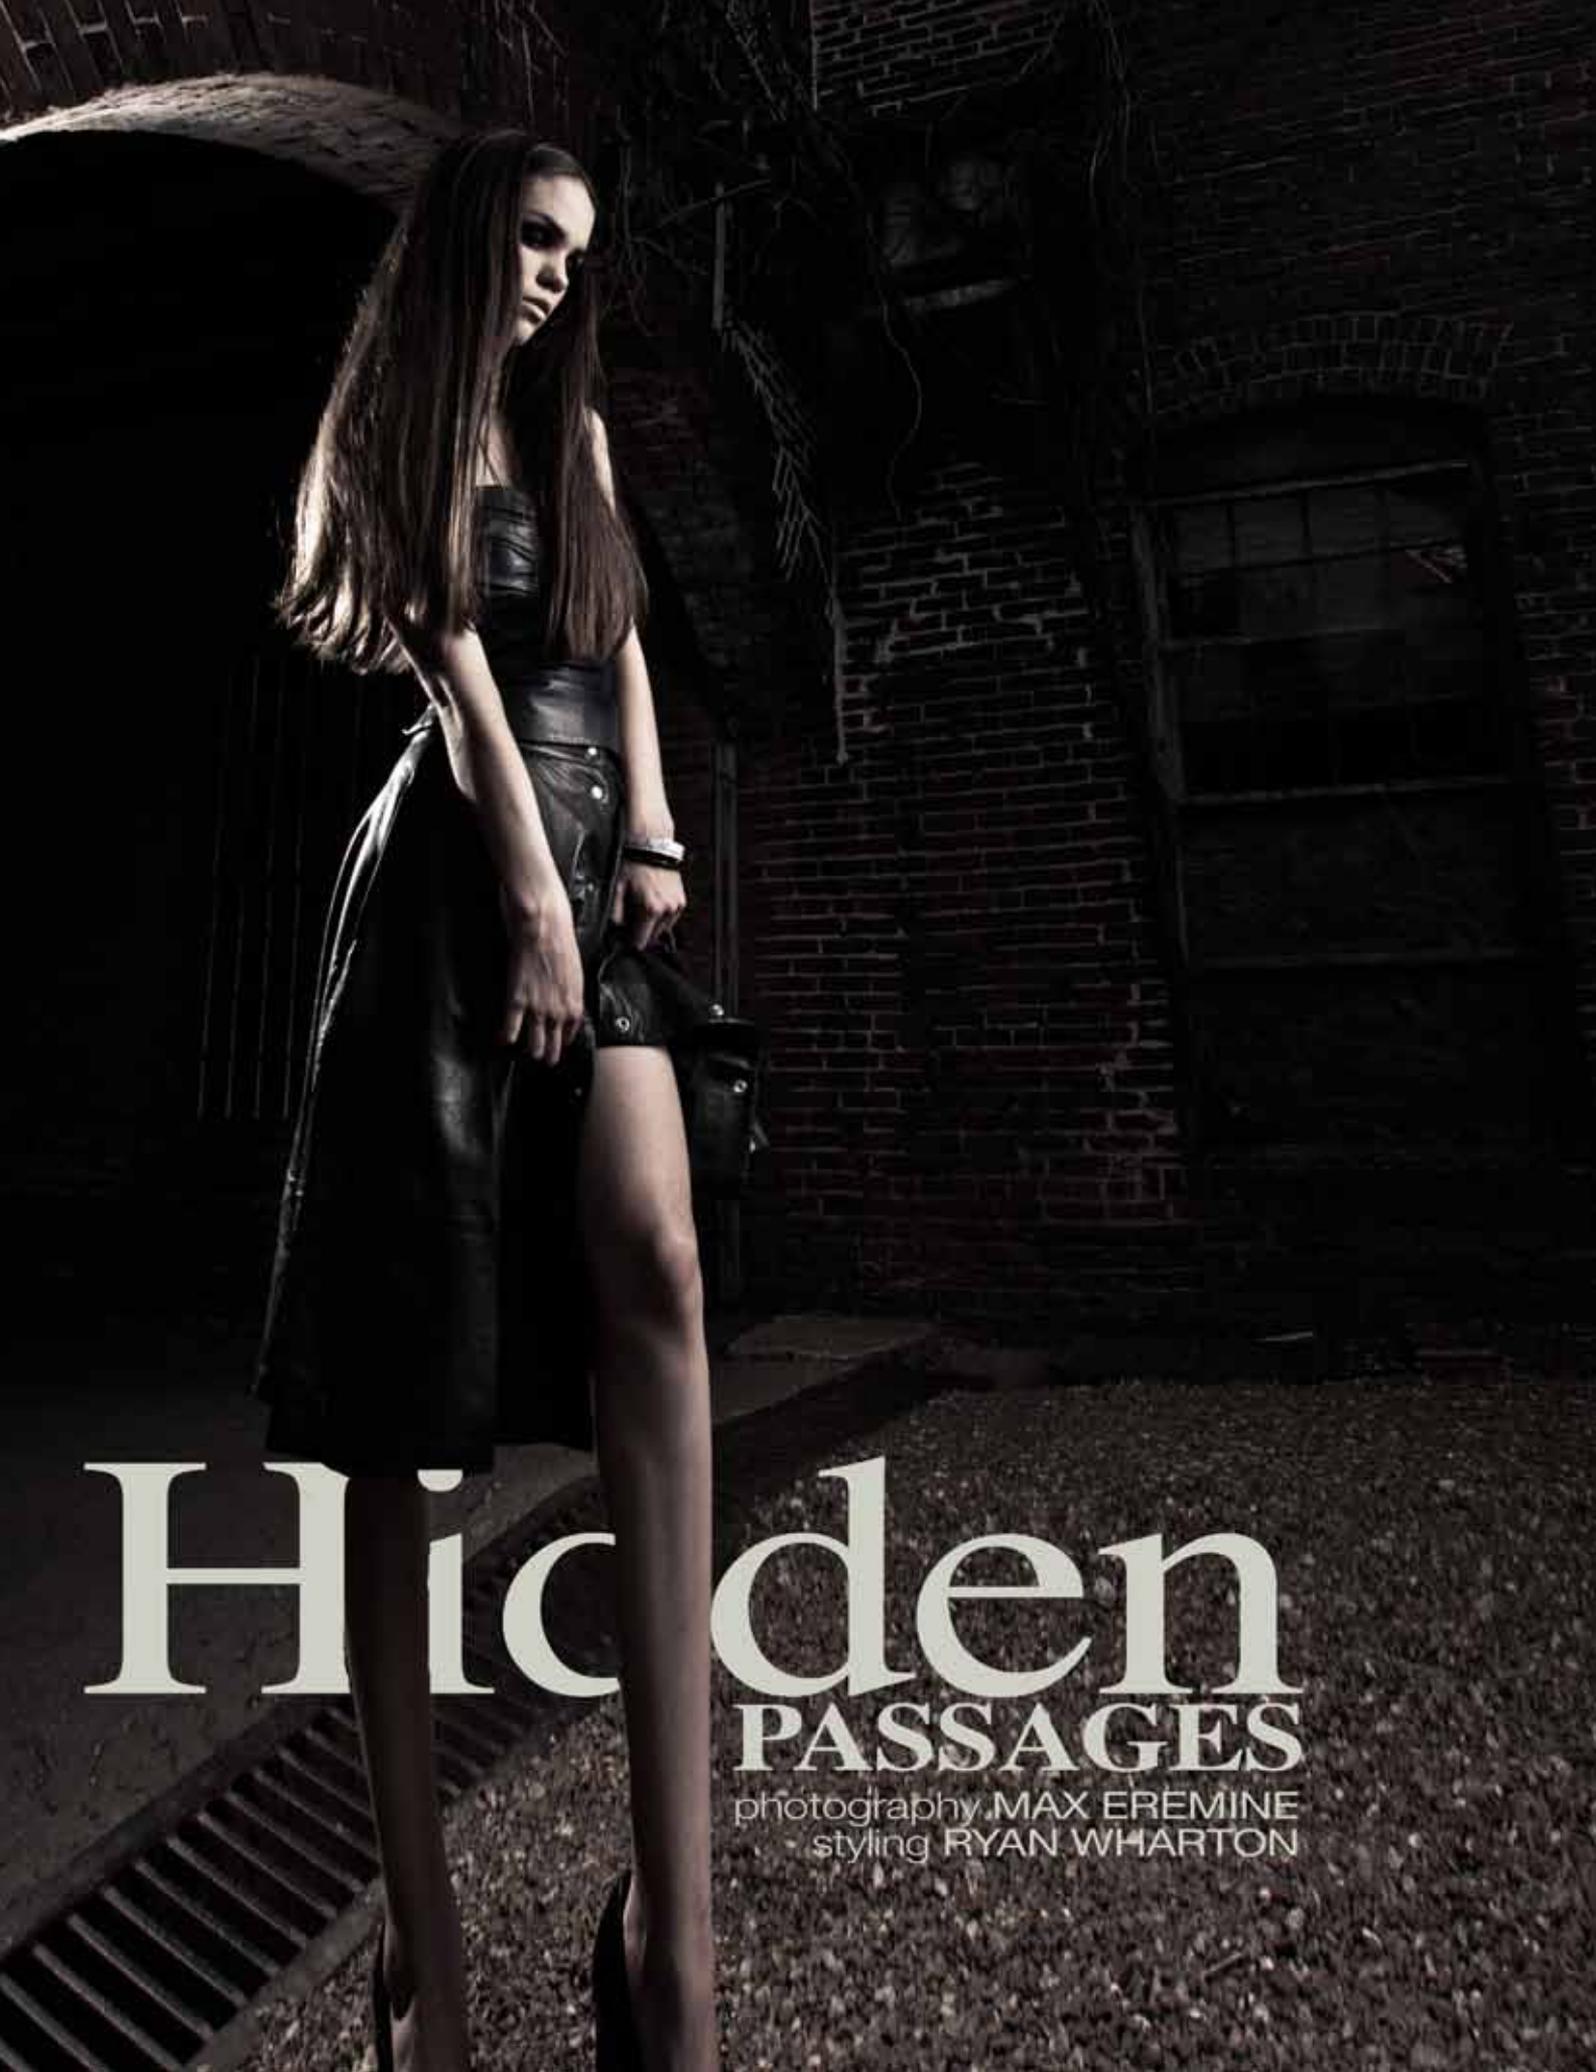

I hope that one day I can share my passion with the rest of the world. Nothing would give me greater pleasure than to see my garments being worn and loved.

This is the wanderlust issue, so here's a couple travel questions for you...If Phoenix keating could be based out of anywhere, where would it be?

Paris.

The brand originates in Australia so you must travel a bunch – staple piece of clothing needed on all trips?

My Neckerchief.

BY BIANCA ALEXA

So it's been a little over a year since Bianca Alexa graced our first issue cover. We thought we would check in on our lovely and see what kind of trouble she's been getting into.

WE COULDN'T POSSIBLY IMAGINE ALL THE THINGS THAT HAVE TRANSPIRED SINCE HER FIRST COVER. WE DECIDED IT WOULD BE BEST TO HAVE HER GIVE YOU HER OWN ACCOUNT OF THE EVENTS THAT TRANSPIRED. AND IT WENT A LITTLE SOMETHING LIKE THIS...

“The person who's name I call must immediately return to the house, pack your belongings, and go home,” Tyra Banks says, standing before me, tall and ominous. “America has voted, and the first person going home this week is..Bianca.”

I know what you're thinking, and yes, that little clip was me getting voted off of the infamous TV show, Americas Next Top Model. But wait, let's back track a bit to the beginning of this year so I can explain everything..

Sitting outside an empty house in San Francisco smoking a cigarette, I wondered how I had arrived at this point: waiting on some loser guy who didn't even like me and desperately craving that hippie life in San Fran that was not playing out as I has planned. Why was I forcing this? I had already decided to leave SF State. This life was over. It was time to move on and go back home to Los Angeles..but no. Here I sat instead, desperately trying to make this pathetic life work.

“ Time to loosen you guys up! Dance break! Gentleman, grab a lady of your choice and line up! We're gonna catwalk too! ”

But then something happened: I got an email from Chase Austin, one of the LA recruiters from Top Model, asking me to please come and audition for the show. So what did I do? I got the hell outta dodge and headed out to LA on a Greyhound in the hopes of getting on a show I once laughed at. Boredom can lead to some interesting opportunities.

Days went by and callbacks for the show came and went. I sat in a little room at Radford studios. I had made it to the final callback for the show. Why was it taking four hours to get to me? I had no clue. One of the girls next to me looked annoyed too. "Wanna ditch this shit and get some food?" She asked, "We'll totally be back in time. This shit is taking forever." I laughed and knew that I had instantly made a best friend. Her name was Hayley. But we'll get back to her later.

As you may have already discovered, this year, Top Model decided to bring men on the show. And hell, I couldn't complain! They were all looking delicious at the callback. One little cutie in particular caught my eye. A carbon copy of James Dean stood next to me, 5'10 and not needing an inch more. Sure, I had overheard him talking about about his partner Dean and knew that, of course, he didn't swing my way, but I was hell bent on being his bestie anyway!

MODEL BEHAVIOR

By the time Hayley and I got back from playing hooky, we were still a long way away from doing our individual interviews. Yawning and over it, I was about to just walk out again but the casting directors stopped everything and told us all it was break time.

"Time to loosen you guys up!" She said. "Dance break! Gentleman, grab a lady of your choice and line up! We're gonna catwalk too!"

So who immediately grabs me? Little James Dean. Standing in line, I was trying to think of something that we could do that would make us stand out. While I was mapping out a potential kiss, it was our turn before I could say anything. We get to the end of the runway and suddenly Chris (James Dean) pulls me in and plants one on me! I knew then we were officially besties.

So many things happened on the show that I can't even begin to go into depth here. I could honestly write a book about just those three weeks. A romance blossomed, I met two of my closest friends in LA and I got to make a fool of myself on national television. No need to bore you with all that here though. The extremely edited version is available on your TV instead.

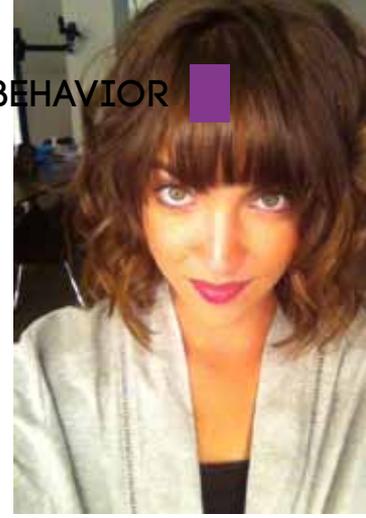

After the show I walked into Wilhelmina's open call, got myself an agent, lost 10 pounds (dont worry, that was my ideal!), and started working almost everyday. I've done two national commercials, worked for Guess, and even modeled for Glamour magazine.

Shortly after, Hayley my bestie ended up introducing me to one of the top penny stock traders in the world, Tim Sykes and I ended up winning his Miss Penny Stock contest. What is Miss Penny Stock you ask? Well, it is a competition that Tim decided to create two years ago, drunk in Hawaii. "Finance is boring," he admits. "Miss Penny Stock will be a pretty face to show what I can do with my teaching," he continued, "I want to teach everybody, so why not models?"

Why not models indeed. Hayley won last year in 2012, and now, I'm traveling the world with him and Hayley. My biggest dream is to visit Greece and now the three of us are all going this month. So I'm working as a model here in LA, and living the dream life I always imagined for myself.

Where do I see myself in a year? God, who KNOWS. I never even imagined my life being this incredible six months ago..A whole year from now could bring anything. Thanks you guys for giving me my first cover!

Xoxo Your girl Bianca

ROME

and the AMALFI Coast

A CLASSIC ITALIAN EXPERIENCE FOR THE STYLISHLY SOJOURNING COUPLE

In search of accessible, stylish travel, a young fashionable couple explores the natural beauty and sophistication of the Amalfi Coast and the timeless grandeur of Rome.

.....
By Shane Fonner, experienced with Jane Lerman

Like every tourist I stumbled out of the Rome airport concerned not only that I hadn't gotten a stamp on my passport nor gone through customs, but also by the reckless disregard for precious time spent waiting for my luggage. My worries were soon abated in the dense, moist heat of the early August evening, which sits languidly and deeply ensconced between the aged buildings, heaving in close quarters and sequestering my every move.

August in Rome provides an amazing opportunity to seek out usually inundated sights with minimal intrusion—the typical throng of tourists seems to be put off by the morbid heat and humidity and the locals have all headed down the coast for holiday.

Casually sexy in white jeans and a loose sleeveless tee, I checked into CROSSING CONDOTTI (crossingcondotti.com) with my effortlessly chic and stylish girlfriend. Elegantly appointed and set uniquely on the second floor of an ancient palazzo, Crossing Condotti's unique allure lies in the professionalism and charm of its staff. Francesco, the manager, is eager to help and more than capable. Rooms are romantic and well situated to the major attractions of Rome.

When in Rome, there are certain undeniable monuments that you must check off your list. See the SPANISH STEPS (just feet away from Crossing Condotti), the TREVI FOUNTAIN, the COLOSSEUM, and the majestic PANTHEON—a marvel of human ingenuity and engineering. The VATICAN is also worth a visit, and if you are accustomed to walking, do yourself a favor and see Rome by foot—there's no better way to become intimately involved with the ancient city. We walked the entire historic center in an epic marathon 4-hour session—ideal for burning off the pasta calories and general lethargy. For the lazy, cab rides are also fairly affordable (between $5 and $15 depending on distance) and a good, safe option. Seek out the white Mercedes with the light on top.

PRAIANO

AMALFI COAST

In the evening, be sure to visit TRASTEVERE, a riverside neighborhood over the bridge from the historical center. With loads of restaurants and bars to choose from, find a place with a menu in Italian only and avoid places where you hear English being spoken. During August, there is also a festival of white tents lining the Tiber River and featuring local and exotic foods, music, and cinema.

After Rome, we headed on the FRECCIAROSSA (Italy's fast train traveling at speeds of 200Mph) to Naples and on to the AMALFI COAST, a singularly stunning place with precipitous cliffs and magnificent panoramic views. We stayed in PRAIANO, a slightly off-the-beaten path destination one town over from Positano. Praiano is a more rugged, less touristy beach town with a hidden marvel of black sand squeezed miraculously between two mammoth rocks jutting out of the turquoise Mediterranean.

“ The daunting climb to the top is unavoidable; yet still one of the charms of Positano. ”

Here you'll hear little English spoken (though everyone speaks it) and see very few tourists—and feel like you've discovered your very own paradise. The water is some of the clearest in the world, and boutique hotels and romantic restaurants dot the coast—try IL PIRATA (ristoranteilpirata.net) for a sexy evening on the sea.

At sunset, try the incandescent IL PINO (hosteriailpino.it) for magnificent sunset views over Positano. We dined late into the evening, with couples romanticizing over the Michelin-starred chef's offering and homemade goodness beyond anyone's expectations. Ask Baldo, the owner, for the daily specials or throw out the menu altogether—let the chef make the decisions as you sit back and drift off into your lovers' eyes.

Jet-set into POSITANO for some of the wildest scenery out there—a town pirouetting delicately on sublime, rocky cliffs. The SITA bus, though on a distinctly Italian schedule, does come occasionally and provides an affordable (and entertaining) option for travel between towns. Watch gleefully as the driver balances the six-ton machine on hairpin turns and fights dramatically with on-coming traffic—including often times, other buses and bus drivers. Their tip-toe dance, back and forth, is a priceless amusement.

Positano is grandiose and breathtaking; leave the bus at town center and descend the swirling roads and steep staircases to the black sand beach at its core. Eat at LA PERGOLA (hotelbucadibacco.it) on the beach and watch as tourists gawk at maps and spin in circles trying to consume the magnificent expanse of hills and rock, blue Mediterranean and black sand. Don't ask the local artist to take your picture, though—while his oil painting is passable, he has a terrible eye with the camera. Find someone with an expensive camera of their own and have them give it a shot.

The daunting climb to the top is unavoidable; yet still one of the charms of Positano. There's really not much to do except eat, relax, smoke cigarettes, relax, drink, eat, repeat. Put on your skimpiest bathing suit and skip the pasta- the water temperatures tend to stay in the low 80s.

Sad to leave the Amalfi Coast, easily one of the most magical places in the world, we headed to the northern side of the peninsula to SORRENTO. Checking into the MAGI HOUSE (magihouse.it), we were greeted by the charming Roberta, whose guidance to local restaurants and attractions are perfectly curated for the young and stylish. The 5-room boutique hotel serves organic food and in-house wine produced and curated by the hotel's owner, Mariano Cappiello, a stylish Sorrentino with an artistic pedigree. Suggesting only local, non-touristic restaurants that price food fairly, we were led to SACRO E PROFANO (sacroeprofano.sorrento.it), a gem hidden on a small side street. We also discovered the enchanting DONNA SOFIA (ristorantedonnasofia.com), accessible via pre-arranged free shuttle through lemon groves and barely passable streets, set atop a hill in a private villa.

From Sorrento, dressed casually but undeniably chic, we headed to the Mecca of fashionable Summering—CAPRI. We arrived in Capri anxious for the opulently natty. We were not disappointed. Pulling into the harbor we were awestruck by the rock walls emerging exuberantly from the blue sea. The white limestone is in stark contrast to the cerulean blue of the clear skies, forest green grass perched like a toupee atop the sheer face. Nestled at the top of the FUNICULAR'S path uphill from Marina Grande, the town of Capri crowns the island's eastern side with jewels of European (mainly Italian) high fashion. Fendi, Gucci, Ferragamo, Louis Vuitton—the list reads like a Sartorial Hall of Fame. Neck-snapping in its pervasiveness, the heights of voguish swank inundated us as we troved the alleyways, immersed in its ubiquity and loving the impossibly tasteful curation of the island's inhabitants, visitors and dashing locals alike.

We stopped on a recommendation at AURORA PIZZERIA (auroracapri.com), hidden on a side street off the main square but effusive of its illustrious clientele—pictures of Jay Z, Beyonce, Cristiano Ronaldo and Steven Spielberg in the restaurant line the interior and exterior white walls. The paper-thin pizza is dynamite, and the fresh pasta brings it home.

Back in Sorrento we sadly parted ways with the Magi House staff, whose exuberant driver/private tour operator, SERAFINO (regasorrentours.blogspot.it), transferred us back to the Naples train station for the fast train back to Rome.

HOTEL BAROCCO

“ The town of Capri crowns the island’s eastern side with jewels of European high fashion. ”

Back in Rome, we settled for a final night into the HOTEL BAROCCO (hotelbarocco.com), an epicly well-designed and well-run hotel in the historic center of Rome, mere minutes from the Trevi Fountain. Their capable staff exhibited daft service, arranging breakfast in our room prior to our 7am checkout. Newly renovated, the Hotel Barocco’s baroque interiors are lush and beckon a hearty sleep. After an evening at the delectable PIZZA CIRO (pizzaciro.it), the bed called my name if only for a few hours.

Not wanting our trip in Rome to ever end, we spent the waning hours of our romantic sojourn sipping LIMONCELLO and listening to live jazz music just across the piazza from Hotel Barocco. The warm orange pink of morning breezed through the taxi windows at over 100mph as we zoomed Formula One style to the airport, listening to thumping 70s disco beats and wishing we could enjoy our Roman holiday.

This menu is not very complicated, and will make you look like a seasoned chef in front of your friends. It will also lead to conversation and maybe a game of Rummikub.

Remove from pan and place on a cookie sheet. Copy these steps until all the chicken is cooked. Then place in the broiler for about 2-3 minutes, until the prosciutto is wilted and slightly crispy. In the saute pan, add butter, garlic and white wine. Reduce for a few minutes, then add the chicken stock. Reduce again and reserve 1/2 the sauce for the chicken. Add the spinach and saute until wilted. If you need to do the spinach in batches, add some butter and wine, then the spinach to wilt, salt and pepper to taste.

and cognac)

Ingredients

Crepes

4 eggs
3 Tablespoons Flour
3 Tablespoons
1 Tablespoon water
Pinch of salt

Sauce

1/4 cup cognac
1/4 cup grand mariner
1/4 cup butter
1/4-1/2 cup fresh raspberries.

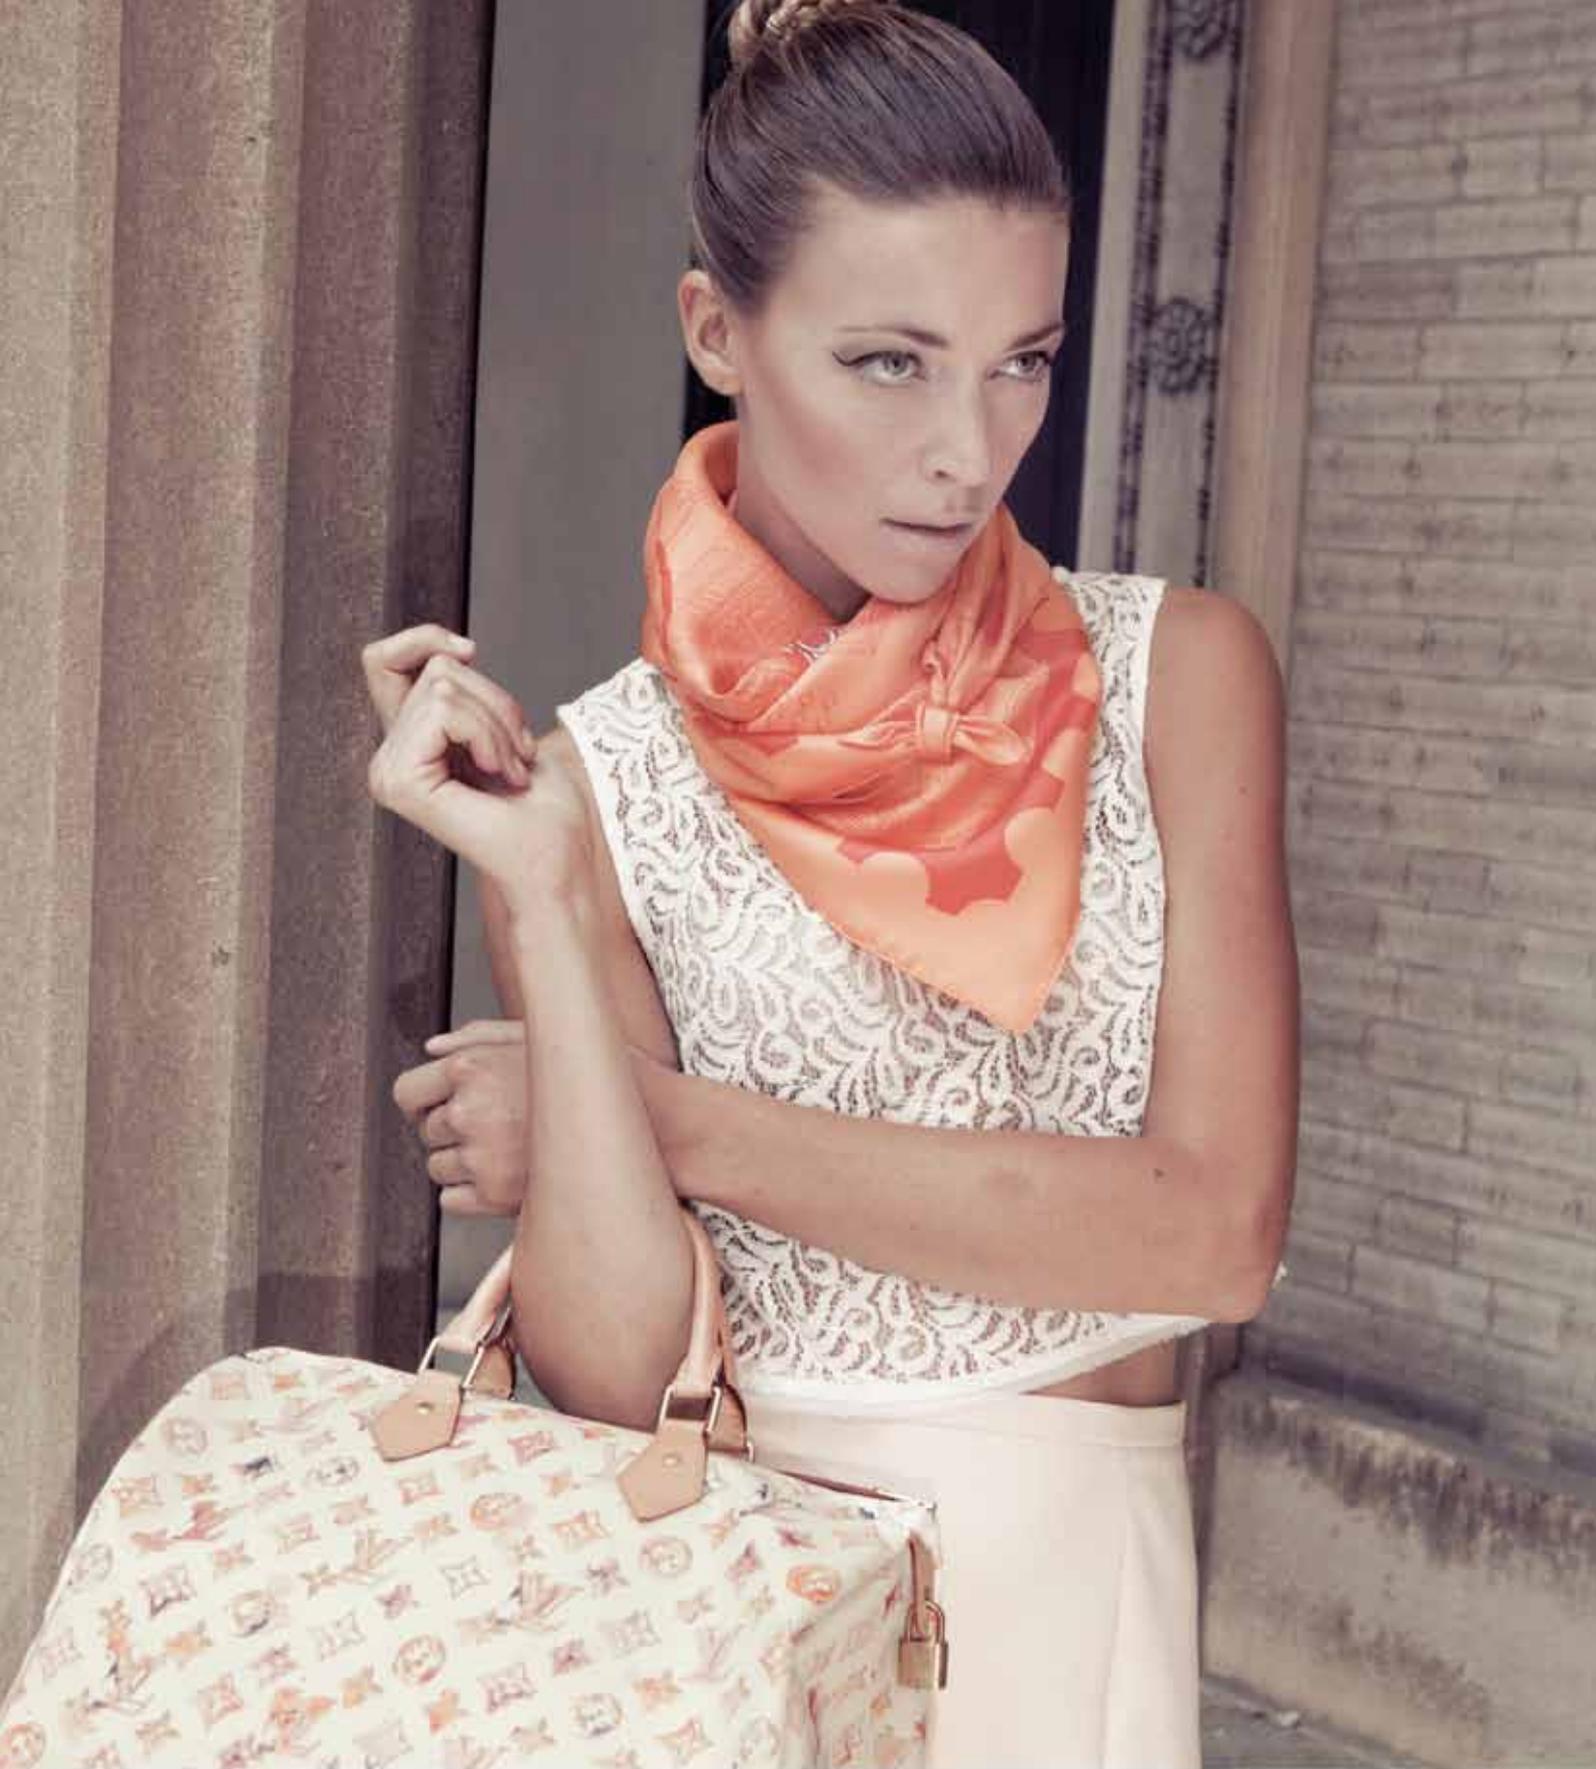

Procedure

You can use a blender or a food processor for this recipe. Mix all ingredients until smooth. Let stand at least 4 hours (overnight is preferable). If you do not have a crepe pan you can use a 10-inch non stick saute pan. Heat pan over medium-high heat, lightly spray the pan with Pam non-stick liquid. When it starts to smoke, spoon the batter into the middle of the pan, take off the heat and swirl around pan until it's as thin as it can get. When you see bubble holes forming and the middle is cooked through, place on a plate and cover with plastic to keep warm. Crepes can be made days ahead of time and wrapped and stored in refrigerator. When all pancakes are done, fold each one in 1/2 then in 1/2 again so it forms a wedge. Heat the pan once again, add the butter, once it starts to bubble add the sugar and caramelize for 30 seconds. Take the pan off the flame and add your booze. Slowly return to flame and carefully flambé. If you are in a small apartment or have a very sensitive smoke alarm be very careful (also watch your eyeballs!). Cook for 1 minute to cook off the alcohol, then add the crepes and cook for another minute or two until cooked through. Display on a nice serving platter and sprinkle with berries.

Hot PINK! Centrix Ceramic Styling Iron

Lock in smooth and sleek moisture with ultra fast infrared heat-producing negative ions and ceramic plates. It is equipped with an LED indicator light that blinks blue and red when the iron is ready for use. Comes with Fabulous Sequins PINK! Travel Case for stylish on-the-go storage.

Hot PINK! Centrix Q-Zone Dryer

Restore serenity to your blow-out with Insanely Quiet™ technology. Energy-efficient Ceramic Tourmaline technology delivers healthier looking hair, shine and moisture. Comes with free sequined wristlet, and Power Booster that increases wind velocity up to 50 MPH for an even more supersonic (yet quiet!) blow dry.

Hot PINK! Friction Free Pro Dryer & Styling Iron

Heat styling roughs up the hair's cuticles, which reduces its natural shine and smoothness. The ionic tourmaline technology in the dryer reduces frizz and adds luster. The proprietary blend of friction-reducing polymers found in the styling iron's low-friction ceramic plates leave hair smooth and silky and straight in record time, as the iron quickly heats up to 392 degrees Fahrenheit.

Hot PINK! Friction Free Travel Dryer & Mini Flat Iron Set

The Travel Dryer features two heat/speed settings and blasts a strong 1600 watts of power. It's the perfect compact size for travel, and folds in half to become even smaller. The Mini Flat Iron's mere 6-inches make it a great travel companion. It heats up to 392 degrees Fahrenheit and features rubber accents for cool touch protection.

Hot PINK! Static Free Comfort Collection

Fight hat hair and static in style! Static Free Comfort Brushes have ceramic and ion infused extra large comfort ball tips for extreme comfort, moisture and static reduction while reducing blow-dry time. Perfect for sensitive scalps and blissful head massages.
